

Project launch: REMAP - Reading for Meaning and Purpose

Last autumn, four European universities launched the project REMAP: Reading for Meaning and Purpose. The project aims to develop educational resources to stimulate meaningful reading practices in universities and beyond. These practices can help students find meaning and purpose in their lives, making them more resilient and supporting their emotional, social and civic needs... KEEP READING

Upcoming event: REMAP symposium

In October 2025, the REMAP project will hold an expert meeting aimed at developing a Companion to Meaningful Reading, designed to help university and high school teachers incorporate meaningful reading practices into their courses. The expert meeting will take place at VU University Amsterdam and will have three outstanding guests: Karen Bohlin (Director of the Practical Wisdom Project at the Abigail Adams Institute), Edward Brooks (Director of the Oxford Character Project), and Olivia Fialho (Senior researcher in empirical and computational literary studies, Royal Dutch Academy of Sciences)... KEEP READING

New initiative: University of Navarra launches first REMAP course

The first REMAP: Reading for Meaning and Purpose course will be offered by the Core Curriculum Institute at the University of Navarra and taught by Professor Rosalía Baena and Professor Álvaro Sánchez-Ostíz, who are both researchers participating in the REMAP project. The course is called Reading for Life, and includes readings by Tolstoy, Faulkner, Spiegelman, Flaubert, Borges and others... WATCH VIDEO

Co-funded by the European Union

<https://remap-project.eu>

View email in browser

update your preferences or unsubscribe

